

Dear investors,

Q2 was our strongest quarter to date. ARR grew 18% quarter-over-quarter to $19.3M, net revenue retention held at 128%, and we closed the quarter with 27 months of runway at current burn. The headline driver was EMEA, where the enterprise renewal cohort we flagged last quarter closed 3-4 weeks ahead of schedule — six deals totaling $1.1M in annualized value, none of which required a discount beyond our standard multi-year terms.

We also shipped the Analytics Pro tier in April, three weeks ahead of the roadmap we shared at the last board meeting. Early attach rate among existing Team-tier accounts is running at 9%, ahead of our 6% first-quarter target for a new tier launch. We believe this validates the pricing thesis from our March strategy memo and expect attach rate to keep climbing as the in-app upsell prompts roll out to the full base in July.

"This was the first quarter where expansion revenue, not new logos, was the majority of net new ARR — a milestone we've been building toward for six quarters."

On the other side of the ledger: APAC growth continues to lag the rest of the business at just 6% YoY, against 14-31% everywhere else. We believe this is a pricing localization problem, not a product or demand problem, and the regional team has a proposal ready for the Q3 planning offsite. We'll bring the details to the next board meeting.

ARR Growth — Trailing 6 Quarters

Key Metrics

Metric	Q1 2026	Q2 2026	QoQ
ARR	$16.3M	$19.3M	+18%
Net revenue retention	124%	128%	+4pt
Gross margin	78%	79%	+1pt
Months of runway	29	27	-2

Next board meeting: August 12, 2026. Please review the Q3 hiring plan (sent separately) before then — we'd like to lock headcount for the APAC pricing initiative at that meeting.

Thank you, as always, for the support.

— The Nimbus Analytics team